

About the Speakers

Adriana Bialostozky, M.D., was born in Mexico City where she obtained her Medical Diploma at the Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México. Her research has focused on access to care for children of migrant farm workers. Dr. Bialostozky joined the Division of General Pediatrics at Vanderbilt with a commitment to develop a clinic for Spanish speaking patients and to train residents in the care of the Latino patient. Her research focused on the Latino population, particularly concerning their access to care. Her area of interest is general pediatrics, cultural competency and health of Latino population.

Jorge Boero, Ph.D., H.S.P., is a native of Argentina and is fully bilingual in Spanish and English. He is a licensed psychologist who received his M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of South Dakota, and completed his postdoctoral training at the Vanderbilt University Medical Center's Department of Psychiatry. Dr. Boero conducts a range of forensic, immigration and diagnostic psychological evaluations with children, adolescents and adults. He is currently the clinical psychologist at Athena Consulting and Psychological Services.

Carol Etherington, MSN, RN, FAAN, is a nurse who has worked in urban and rural areas around the globe focusing on traumatized populations. In Nashville, her focus has been largely on victims of violence and refugee/immigrant populations. She is an Associate Director of Vanderbilt's Institute for Global Health focusing on community health in three primary areas: displaced persons, violence against women as a public health concern, and addressing health care worker shortages in resource limited settings.

Kim Roberts, LPC, CEAP, SPHR, is the Community Care Coordinator for HealthSpring. Prior to working at HealthSpring, she was the director of programs at Mental Health Association of Middle Tennessee. In her role at MHAMT, Roberts provided oversight of agency clinical services, conducted educational programs on mental health/illness topics and maintained community liason, consultation and referral services.

Lauren Smith, RN, MSN, FNP-C, has always been passionate about working with people from different cultures and helping those who have no access to healthcare. In her role as Family Nurse Practitioner and Refugee Clinical Coordinator at Siloam Family Health Center, she has the unique opportunity to work with uninsured patients as well as care for newly arrived refugees from over 70 different countries.

Rebecca Swift, LCSW, has been in the field of social work for 10 years practicing in both mental health and medical settings. She has worked at Siloam Family Health Center for two years, first as a social worker and most recently as the Behavioral Health Consultant.

Panel Members:

Michael Evans, State Refugee Health Coordinator, Tennessee Office of Refugees.

Aram Khoshnaw, M.P.H., Language Services and Health Navigation Supervisor, Family and Children's Services.

Marielle Lovecchio, M.Ed., Community Development Director, Center for Refugees & Immigrants of Tennessee.

Laurel Lunn, a Ph.D. candidate in the Community Research and Action program at Vanderbilt University's Peabody College.

About Mental Health America of Middle Tennessee

Mental Health America of Middle Tennessee (formerly Mental Health Association of Middle Tennessee) was founded in 1946 and its mission is to connect the community with specialized mental health and wellness resources, provide services that improve the quality of life, and promote effective services where mental health needs exist. The agency believes that mental illness is real and treatable, that every life is worth saving, and that there is no health without mental health.

This Mental Health Academy seminar is part of MHAMT's educational outreach and exhibits our commitment to improving the quality of care for mental health consumers and advancing research-based knowledge and tools to professionals working with mental health consumers.
