

Boost Breakfast: Time to boost your "FI"!

Wednesday 9 February 2011; 7.00am to 8:30pm

Cable Beach Club, Broome

FI is Financial Intelligence... the essential tool for every non-profit manager. As a manager, your primary role is to get programs delivered, and to ensure everyone is focussed on getting the best outcomes in the most efficient way. So having high FI means you appreciate the link between the money story and the impact of programs on your organisation's clients, customers and staff.

This Boost Breakfast is intended to top up your FI for 2011. The session is designed to explore ways to link your strategic priorities and goals to your financial plans, and an overview of how financial reports can be used to track success, identify potential barriers and dazzle your board, and motivate your staff with your numbers knowledge.

If you 'don't do numbers', then this Boost Breakfast is for you, as Michelle and Rowena take you on the FI highwire, with a net!

Michelle Taylor has spent most of her 20 year career 'building bridges' between finance and operations departments in dozens of different organisations across four continents. An experienced facilitator and management coach, she has a passion for showing how numbers can be an exciting and integral part of the manager's toolkit.

In her 11 years in Broome, Rowena Strain has been mostly teaching business skills, working in the community sector and/or volunteering on community sector boards. Her business skills can really help community sector management, particularly in financial skills.

The Boost Series is an opportunity for busy people in non-profits to meet, share and learn.
